By the glass	125ml
La Perle du Sud Blanc de Blancs, Meknès	225
Moët & Chandon Brut, Champagne	250
By the bottle	75cl
Dom Pérignon 2006, Epernay, Champagne Light with fine citrus and mineral characteristics, as well as delicate apple and biscuit flavours. The finish is long and smooth	4950
Krug Grande Cuvée, Reims, Champagne Richly textured but also delicate – soft, subtle red fruit, crisp energising citrus, deep toasted notes of freshly baked bread. Smooth, elegant and refined	5800
Laurent Perrier Rosé, Tours-Sur-Marne, Champagne Intensely fresh and fruity flavours. It has great length, is rounded and supple on the finish	2600
Laurent Perrier Brut, Tours-Sur-Marne, Champagne Delicate nose with hints of citrus and white fruit. Fresh and easy on the palate with plenty of flavours; good balance and length	1550
La Perle du Sud Blanc de Blancs, Les Celliers de Meknès, Meknès, Morocco Delicate bubbles, fresh citrus and subtle toasted bread notes. Made following the traditional champagne method	990
Moët & Chandon Brut, Epernay, Champagne Three years ageing result in a Champagne with body1 flavour and harmony. There are elements of lime and blossom on the nose. The palate is medium bodied with an elegant finish.	1550
Ruinart Blanc de Blancs, Reims, Champagne Suave, delicate and beautifully balanced, this Blanc de Blancs is a deliberately seductive champagne that will rise to all occasions. Very supple, round and harmonious notes of nectarine, apricot and cherry plum	2480
Ruinart Rosé Fresh, zesty nose which offers strawberry and pomegranate aromas with a hint of Asian spices. Deep, rich and smoky on the palate, with a chewy texture of the ripe red berry and cherry flavours. Finishes with noteworthy length	2850

moroccan wine regions

Although Morocco was influenced over the centuries by groups as varied as the Phoenicians, Romans, Arabs and a number of European powers, it was only with the arrival of the French in the mid-19th century when wine production truly began. Morocco produces red, white, rosé and 'gris' wine, but don't expect 'grey' wine for the latter - these are white wines produced from red grapes, particularly Pinot Noir. Other red grape varieties under cultivation include Carignan, Cinsault, Grenache, Syrah, Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot, with Sauvignon Blanc, Chenin Blanc, Chardonnay, Muscat and Clairette the mainstays of the country's white wines.

We encourage you to try some of the local varieties; a crisp glass of white, rosé or 'gris' by the pool is a welcome accompaniment on a hot day, but if you're curled up by the fireplace in winter only a warming red will do. If it's a special occasion we recommend a glass (or bottle) of Perle du Sud, a locally produced sparkling wine.

les vins marocains

Bien que le Maroc ait été influencé pendant des siècles par les différentes occupations des Phéniciens, Romains, Arabes et différentes puissances Européennes, c'est principalement avec l'arrivée des Français au milieu du 19^e siècle que la production de vin a réellement débuté.

Le Maroc produit aujourd'hui des vins rouges, blancs, rosés et gris. Les cépages les plus utilisés sont pour le vin rouge les Carignan, Cinsault, Grenache, Syrah, Cabernet Sauvignon ou Merlot. Pour les cépages blancs, Sauvignon, Chenin, Chardonnay, Muscat ou Clairette représentent les cépages les plus courants.

Nous vous suggérons d'en essayer différentes sortes: blanc, rosé ou gris seront les bienvenus au bord de la piscine pendant une journée chaude, un verre de vin rouge devant la cheminée pendant une soirée d'hiver, et pour une occasion spéciale, pourquoi pas un verre de vin pétillant du Maroc appelé Perle du Sud.
